As described in the cases of Richard Hoagland and Hans Christian King, I adopted the strategy of trying to derive past life identities for keynote speakers who would be featured at the Conscious Life Expo in Los Angeles, which took place in February 2004. I was also scheduled to participate in that expo and thought that by establishing past life identities for other speakers, I could generate more interest in my reincarnation project.

George Noory, host of the top rated radio program, Coast to Coast AM, was scheduled to be a keynote at the Conscious Life Expo. When I read his biography on the expo web site, I was struck by three things. Mr. Noory indicated that:

1. If he weren't a national radio talk show host, he'd be in politics.
2. He served nine years in the U.S. Naval Reserve
3. He is driven by the desire to solve the great mysteries of our time.

After reading his bio, I had the feeling that George Noory was a rebel politician involved in the American Revolution, and that he was a sailor in that era too. Mr. Noory's attraction to the "great mysteries of our time" made me feel like there was a soul connection between us. Many members of the Continental Congress, the group of 76, were quite mystical.

Many Signers of the Declaration of Independence have reincarnated in contemporary times and a number are involved in spiritual matters, in solving great mysteries. As described in Return of the Revolutionaries, these include Shirley MacLaine, Kevin Ryerson, Oprah Winfrey, Gary Zukav, Film Producer Jo Streit, Unity Minister Maureen Bass, neurosurgeon Norm Shealy and Nobel Laureate Kary Mullis. John Hagelin, who is an advocate of Transcendental Meditation, was not a Signer, but he was the revolutionary leader, James Otis. Others reincarnated leaders from the era of 1776, who are more focused on political, rather than spiritual matters, include George W. Bush, Bill Clinton, Al Gore, Ross Perot and Ralph Nader.

I perused a book on the Signers and found someone who I thought was a match for George Noory. William Whipple was sea captain, turned merchant, turned politician who became a Delegate to the Continental Congress from New Hampshire. In a session with Kevin Ryerson, Ahtun Re, the spirit guide channeled through Kevin who has made so many past life matches that appear to be valid, confirmed that George Noory is the reincarnation of William Whipple. To appreciate the abilities of Ahtun Re to make past life matches, please refer to the cases of Carl Sagan, Ralph Nader, Steve Jobs, Steve Wozniak and Neale Donald Walsch, which may be found on this web site or in Return of the Revolutionaries.

William Whipple was born in what is now Maine, in 1730. Going to sea when he was still a boy, Whipple became a shipmaster in his twenties. At the age of thirty, Whipple retired from maritime life to pursue business. At the age of 37, Whipple married the daughter of a well to do merchant sea captain. Not having to worry about finances, William Whipple entered into public service. In 1776, he won a seat in the New Hampshire State legislature and became a delegate to the Continental Congress. In the Continental Congress, Whipple became involved in financial matters, which would have placed him in committee with Robert Morris/Shirley MacLaine. Whipple also actively pursued maritime matters, which meant that he would have worked with John Adams/Walter Semkiw, in creating the Navy of the United States.

William Whipple was described as a "tough minded, independent individual," who also was actively involved in military affairs. Having served on the New Hampshire Council of Safety, Whipple was made a Brigadier General of the New Hampshire militia in 1777. In that role, he led four regiments to New York, where he participated in the Battle of Saratoga. This was the first major victory for the Patriot Army and it gave new and needed hope for a successful outcome to the Revolutionary War. The commanding general at Saratoga was Horatio Gates/Al Gore, and a Colonel who led the fighting for the Patriot forces was Daniel Morgan/George W. Bush. Whipple/Noory was present at the surrender of the British Army at Saratoga, which would have placed him in social proximity to Morgan/Bush and Gates/Gore.

After the war, William Whipple served again in the New Hampshire state legislature and he later became an associate justice in the New Hampshire Superior Court. Whipple died at the age of 55 in Portsmouth and is buried in Union Cemetery.

Though I have confidence in the Noory/Whipple match based on my experience with Kevin Ryerson and Ahtun Re, the past life match with William Whipple will only become real for George Noory if he studies the life of Whipple and finds correspondences in personality, linguistic style and karmic groups. Mr. Noory should theoretically find people close to Whipple, reincarnated and close to him now.

In addition, Mr. Noory may choose to have a session with Kevin Ryerson and get more information regarding past lives from Ahtun Re directly. This may even be done live, on Coast to Coast AM, for Ahtun Re has expressed a desire to appear on radio and television. Ahtun Re last incarnated in Egypt, 2500 years ago. He speaks with an Egyptian accent, has a mischievous sense of humor and is quite the showman. Ahtun Re has indicated that on talk shows, he would reveal past life identities of media hosts on air.

Let us consider for a moment, how Shirley MacLaine's reincarnation case has evolved over time. Shirley has worked with Kevin Ryerson for over twenty years. Kevin is featured in three of Shirley's books and he plays himself in the movie version of Out on a Limb. In her book, Dancing in the Light, Shirley recounts her peak experiences of enjoying the success of Out on a Limb, of a hit Broadway show and of her winning of an Oscar. In Dancing in the Light, Shirley relates that she had been in a movie making slump, when she had a session with Kevin Ryerson. Kevin's spirit guides told Shirley not to worry, as she would soon be receiving a script regarding a mother-daughter relationship, and that she would win one of those little gold trophies for the film. Two weeks later, Shirley received the script for Terms of Endearment, and she won an Oscar for her role.

When Shirley MacLaine learned that we had established a past life match for her in the persona of Robert Morris, who was known as the "Financier of the Revolution," which was confirmed by Kevin's spirit guides, she was cautious of the match. Though she respected Kevin and his work, she herself had not been told about the match with Morris directly. As such, though she agreed to be included as a reincarnation case in Return of the Revolutionaries, she insisted that a disclaimer be put at the end of the chapter, indicating that she was not sure whether she was Robert Morris in a past lifetime.

About a year later, after my book had been published, Shirley had a session with Kevin Ryerson in which his spirit guides confirmed to her directly that she had indeed been Robert Morris. Subsequently, at an event of hers in San Francisco in October 2003, Shirley invited me on stage in front of her audience of almost 300. In an impromptu dialogue that lasted almost two hours, Shirley and I discussed my book, reincarnation and her case in my book, her past life as Robert Morris. In this way, Shirley MacLaine transitioned from being a guarded skeptic to an active supporter of her past life case. Similarly, George Noory will need to study and integrate his proposed past lifetime as William Whipple. I hope that in the near future, Mr. Noory will become an advocate for the reincarnation project, much like Shirley MacLaine.

We must never lose sight of the fact that the most important thing concerning reincarnation research is not who was who, but rather, that objective evidence of reincarnation, which is streaming into the world from multiple independent sources, demonstrates that people can change religious, ethnic and racial affiliation from lifetime to lifetime.

Consider the case of Barbro Karlen/Anne Frank, a compelling reincarnation case, involving childhood memories of a past lifetime, where a young woman who was persecuted as a Jew, reincarnated into a Christian family. Consider that if 60 years ago, the German people knew an individual could be born Jewish in one lifetime and Christian in another, then the Holocaust could never have happened. This is the real importance of the reincarnation project, for there will never be peace on earth until we all adopt a sense of identity that has a broader scope than we do now. We must let go of limited identities, where we see ourselves as a Christian, Muslim, Jew, Hindu or Buddhist. Rather, we must see ourselves as all of these.

Let me close with an analogy that appears at the conclusion of Return of the Revolutionaries.

"Image the great cultural movements and religions of the world as rivers. A prophet or visionary serves as a fountainhead, that initiates a movement. As followers join the founder, the rivulet grows into a stream. The river that then builds flows across time, across centuries. As supporters contribute to the movement, though works of art, architecture, literature and music, the river grows more grand and deep.

"Imagine that we are like fish that descend from the spiritual world and become immersed in these rivers. In one lifetime, we swim in the River of Moses, in another lifetime, we swim in the River of Christ, in yet another, the River of Mohammed, in another, the River of Buddha, and so on. While one is immersed in a particular river, we tend to completely identify with that cultural stream. We become a Christian, Muslim, Jew, Hindu or Buddhist. We identify with the particular race, ethnicity and nationality that we find ourselves in. We forget that in other lifetimes, we have swum in the other streams too.

"For peace to reign on Earth, we must become conscious of the various paths that we traverse and the various identities that we assume. We must remember that from a spiritual perspective, we are the fish, not the rivers, we are universal souls that experience these varied streams. Let us live with this awareness, so that we may all live in peace."
